7 Jokes about...

Bankers

Our small business guides are there to provide businesses with an overview of hints and tips about how to run their business. For this one, we thought we'd be a bit more light-hearted, and provide 7 classic jokes about everyone's least favourite profession – bankers.

1

A definition

"A banker is a fellow who lends you his umbrella when the sun is shining and wants it back the minute it begins to rain."

-- Mark Twain

2

A trip to the tailors

A young banker decided to get his first tailor-made suit. As he tried it on, he reached down to put his hands in the pockets and to his surprise he found none.

He mentioned this to the tailor who asked him, "You're a banker, right?"

The young man answered, "Yes, I am."

"Well, whoever heard of a banker with his hands in his own pockets?"

3

Business Growth

A man visits his bank manager and says, "How do I start a small business?"

The manager replies, "Start a large one and wait six months."

4

Customer service

The customer service at my local bank is so bad that yesterday, when I went and asked the bank clerk if he would check my balance.

He pushed me over and said "not very good, is it?"

5

Another definition

Bankers are people who help you with problems you would not have had without them.

6

Traffic jam

A man is stuck in traffic. He asks a police officer about the hold-up and he replies: "The head of the bank is so depressed about the economy he's stopped his car and is threatening to douse himself with petrol and set himself on fire. So we're taking up a collection for him."

The man asks: "How much have you got so far?"

The policeman replies: "About 40 litres, but a lot of people are still siphoning."

7

A night at the inn

An engineer, a chemist and a banker stop at a small inn. “I have only two rooms”, says the innkeeper, “so one of you will have to sleep in the barn”. The engineer volunteers to sleep in the barn, and the others go to bed in the hotel.

Soon the engineer knocks on the hotel door, saying that there is a cow in the barn and as a Hindu he can't sleep there. “No problem”, says the chemist, and moves to the barn.

But soon the chemist knocks on the hotel door, saying that there is a pig in the barn and as a Jew he can't sleep there. “No problem”, says the banker, and moves to the barn while the others sleep in the hotel.

Soon there is another knock on the hotel door, even louder. The innkeeper opens the door, and sees a very upset cow and pig.

While bankers might be the topic of humour, we at ASC understand the frustration of trying to deal with the bank manager to arrange business finance.
